A PERSONAL PROJECT - Empowering women on the road

Carilyn Egleé has seen first hand what abuse and lack of knowledge can do. A firm believer in empowering women to do more and better for themselves, she has used her knowledge and love for mechanics to teach women how to fend for themselves on the road. From changing a tire, to avoiding an uncomfortable situation with self defense. Now, with MEC she is working on certifications that will help mechanic shops show that they are safe spaces for women.
